Sparrow x Lee

Sparrow sat atop a small hill, her fur pressed against Lee's purring. Today was a happy day. It had been one moon since they had become mates, and the day Lee would find out he was going to be a father. She looked at the sunset, watching the vibrant colors shine around the sun as it went to sleep, and welcomed the moon for night. Her tail twined with Lee's, and her eyes filled with love, as her chest rumbled with a loud purr.
"I wonder..." Lee murmured.
"Wonder what?" Sparrow asked, a mischievous glint in her eyes.
"I wonder if we'll ever have kits, like Cloverpool and Hailfur. They're such a loving couple.." He purred, an innocent cluelessness in his mew.
The orange tabby stepped away from Lee, giving him a happy glance.
"You're lucky, Love." She purred, eyes happier than they had ever been. "Because you're going to be a father. Lee, I'm expecting your kits." She purred, and ran to her mate, purring, and she licked his cheek.
"Sparrow-" The brown tom gasped in astonishment, a sliver of disbelief still in his eyes. "Sparrow, I'm going to be a father!" He purred, returning the loving lick. "We're going to have kits! They'll be just beautiful! I can't wait to tell Slap, he'll be so excited!"
Sparrow nodded, her eyes bright.
"He will be surprised." She purred, thinking of the freckled tom.

--------Two Moons Later--------

Sparrow let out an exhausted purr, looking at the two kits at her belly. They were beautiful, the perfect mix of her and Lee. Her yellow-green eyes turned to Lee's yellow ones.
"What should we name them?" She purred, giving both their kits a small lick.
"The black one, could we name him Angelkit? He looks just like my brother, Angel." Lee purred, touching his tail tip gently to Sparrow's shoulder.

"Of course. The second one..." A hint of indecisiveness entered her voice. Snakeleap chimed up.
"How about Flowkit?" He asked, his voice cracking with emotion. His mate, Slap, nodded in agreement, pressing his head to Slap's.
"Flowkit it is." Sparrow purred. "Flowkit is beautiful."
"These are our kits!" Lee exclaimed. "They'll be the best Warriors! I know they will!"
"I'm sure they will." Sparrow let out a yawn, her exhaustion from birthing her kits finally catching up. She closed her eyes, falling into a gentle sleep, Lee curled around her, purring.

Okay that's the first one. Also, if anyone feels like making me a cover, they can. :) Or fan art and I will display it proudly on this.

Mink x Swan

Swanpaw sat nervously beneath the high branch, waiting to receive her warrior name.

"...even at the cost of your life?" She heard Waspstar yowl.

"I do." She mewed firmly, believing her words. She was going to be a warrior!

"Then from this day on, you shall be known as Swanheart. EchoClan honors you for your courage and determination, and we welcome you as a full warrior." He purred. The leader was happy, he loved to make new Warriors.

The newly named warrior sat up proudly as the clan called her name. Her eyes filled with glee, and she turned to Minktalon. She was only a couple moons older than her, and she had a major crush on her. She watched as the medicine cat chanted her name, her head held to the sky. She only wish that her expression was visible. Was she happy? Was she happy that she was a warrior? Or was she bitter..? The warrior shrugged.

Once the clan finished chanting her name, she walked over to Minktalon.

"Hi, Minktalon..." She mewed nervously, not sure of the reaction she would recieve. She was surprised when Minktalon greeted her warmly.

"Congratulations on the new name, Swan*heart*!" Minktalon purred, touching her tail tip to the young warior's shoulder. "It's beautiful, and it fits you perfectly.

Swanheart felt her fur flush out, and her whiskers twitched in embarassement at the brown and orange patched she-cat's touch.

"Thanks, Minktalon. That means a lot!" She purred.

Minktalon nodded, her copper eye flashing in the light.

"Do you want to go collect herbs with me, Swanheart?" The medicine cat asked. "I have something to tell you."

"Of course I'll help you, Mink!" She purred, and followed the scarred she-cat into the forest.

Suddenly, Minktalon stopped, and turned her eye to Swanheart, a purr in her throat.

"Swanheart..." She mewed, obviously embarassed. "I don't know how to say this... I think I'm in love with you..." She purred, eyes wary. The white she-cat gasped.
"Minktalon! I love you too!" She purred, licking the medicine cat's forehead lovingly.
"So... Do you think we could maybe be... Er... More, thank friends?" She asked awkwardly.

"Yes, you mousebrain! Of course I'll be your mate! I love you!" She purred, playfully swiping her paw over Minktalon's ears. "Thank you for asking."
She rubbed her white head against Minktalon's patched one, and purred louder than a monster.

"I love you, Swanheart." Minktalon purred. "I'm happy to be your mate."

Swanheart only nodded, and twined her tail with Minktalon's fluffy tail.

Second one! Yeah, I'm on firee!!!!

Slap X Snakeleap

For this, I'm going to do some fluffy shit. <3 Love ya Slap-bae. :3

Snakeleap playfully swiped his orange paw over Slap's ear.
"Let's go, Love!" He purred, jumping up once. "I would race, but I think that would be quite one-sided." He joked.
Slap let out a purr, and limped along side Snakeleap.
"It's a beautiful evening, isn't it?" Slap observed, his voice airy. "I love evening time, I'm always so lively."
Snakeleap twined his tail with Slap's.
"That's true, I can never seem to stay up with you at night." The orange tom purred, licking Slap's freckled cheek. The birds chirped in the pine trees, giving the fading daylight a wonderful sense of life. As the two mates padded through the pine forest, the sun trailed behind them, causing their shadows to stretch in front of the toms. Snakeleap looked up, and saw an owl nest in one of the larger pines.
"Look, Slap, an owl nest!" He mewed, pointing his tail upwards. "Don't see those often."
The freckled tom grunted, obviously distracted by something. His blue eye had trailed off towards the river behind them. The freckled tom turned around, and slowly hobbled towards the peaceful clearing. Snakeleap followed him, relaxing where his mate was heading. As they pushed through the angling willows, the peaceful flow of the bank gave the small clearing a sleepy and peaceful feeling. Slap lay down, and Snakeleap lay next to him, curling around the smaller tom.
"I love you." Slap murmured, purring loudly.
"I love you too, even if you're a mouse-brain sometimes." Snakeleap responded, gently lapping at Slap's ears. He gazed across the water, seeing the water bugs lazily dance across the calm cove, no cares in the world.
"I wish life could always be like this, Snakeleap." Slap purred, blinking slowly.

"Don't we all? Life used to be peaceful, but Shadowfire and Shadefur ruined that." His voice turned bitter at the end, eyes hardening with anger at the thought of the two rogues. "But let's not talk about them. Let's forget about life for a while. It's nice and peaceful here."
Slap set his head down, closing his eye, purring. His breath slowed, and he fell asleep, laziness finally overtaking him. Snakeleap chuckled, but set his head down next to his mate's neck.
"Good night." He purred, closing his eyes. His breath slowly went into sync with Slap's as he fell asleep, letting out gentle snores.

Sorry this took so long, I had no motivation to write at all.
But here we are.
Slap belongs to Peltyriver507 , and Snakeleap belongs to me.

Ivy X Swift

Swiftspeck padded around camp, looking from side to side nervously. His second litter of kits was being born.
He heard a screech, and rushed over to the nursery.
"What's happening?!" He yowled, looking in nervously.
"Nothing, Swiftspeck." Responded Slap. "She's fine, but birth is painful."

The tricolored tom sighed in relief.
"Thank SpiritClan..." He murmured, padding back out into the camp, running in nervous circles around its perimeter. His kits, Hailbreeze and Lightningpelt, padded up to him.
"It's all right, Swiftspeck." Hailbreeze purred. "Ivybreeze will be fine."
"She's quite old to be having kits..." He mewed worriedly.
"She's not that old!" Lightningpelt purred, wrapping her tail comfortably around her father. "She'll be fine.."

Swiftspeck nodded, sitting down. He curled his tail around his paws, and prayed to SpiritClan that his mate would be fine.

Minktalon padded up to Swiftspeck, gently touching her shoulder to the tom's shoulder.
"Swiftspeck, she's finished." The medicine cat purred, leading the father into the nursery. By Ivybreeze's side were three small kits.
"They're quite small." He mewed, worriedly looking down at his paws.
"They're fine, dear." Ivybreeze purred quietly, gazing down affectionately at her newborn bundled.
"They're beautiful, Ivybreeze." The warrior purred, curling around his mate.
"I agree."

Swiftspeck opened his eyes, letting out a huge yawn. He gently began to lick his mate's ears, as she was already awake.
"Good morning, darling." She purred. "Ready to name our kits?"
"You bet." He mewed tiredly.

"Okay. How about Petalkit, for this one?" She pointed to a she-cat with tortoiseshell patches.
"Sure!" He purred. "And, maybe Horsekit for this one?" He pointed to a tricolor tom.
"Of course, my lovely." Ivybreeze purred, looking at the last one, a tricolor she. "What about for her? Lilackit?"
"No, maybe Pebblekit." He purred, and his mate nodded.
"I agree. Pebblekit is a lovely name." The queen purred.
